

The trailer I grew up in should have been bulldozed down. It was truly unfit for humans. My bedroom floor was a constant wet layer of smelly mold. So now when peeps comment they'd eat off my floors, it feels like a compliment.

A dear friend said, "You should Italian. Teacher. Mom. Single. Gen X.

This is not a dating profile.
I'm only interested in using what I've learned through glorious mistakes to help you stop counting the days until your next vacation.

start a property management business... and call it, Hostile Italian, buuut The Hostel Italian."

So I did.

Decisive. Direct. And determined to help others find solutions for getting out of the spaces they want to escape and create a life they love to live in. You have choices. But time is ...it's frig'n gold.

Spent nearly a decade as an AirBbB superhost, over two decades as an educator, and over four decades of falling down & getting back up, on my own. Occasionally, often-ish actually, literally.

My team (of mostly strong females) can help you build, or rebuild a space you look forward to standing in. Or napping. No judgment here. In addition to all things interior design, we also dabble with special event planning, real estate staging, bed & breakfast sitting, and property management for owners who rent – or want to!